

Real User Measurement

New in Tiki23

This new feature reuses a JavaScript library called boomerang that measures the page load time experienced by real users, commonly called RUM (Real User Measurement). With this feature, you find out exactly how fast your users think your site is.

Apart from page load time, boomerang measures performance timings, metrics and characteristics of your user's web browsing experience

Related:

- Performance
- <https://akamai.github.io/boomerang/>
- (Commit ID forthcoming)