

 mlpvolt - Wed 13 Dec, 2006 06:12 GMT-0000 - (11106 Reads)

Tikiwiki has introduced an new page type to help people learn about the new page type, the new page type and other procedural stuff that makes some people's teeth hurt.

Any interested editors bent on creating order in this wiki are welcome to sign on.

While it lacks formal authority, editorial board members are a group that have a clue about what is going on in the documentation and also sometimes have an opinion. Currently being debated are the use of status indicators on documentation pages and whether or not to elect a new page type.