Forum: Author Coffeeshop

Pictures (in Admin pages mostly)

Posted by Philippe Cloutier Wed 07 Jan, 2004 10:21 GMT-0000 posts: 23 🚫 🇨🇦

I finished fixing WikiSettings for 1.8 at Wiki Admin. The old versions used many pictures and I didn't realize what I was doing until the very end.
I used 1 picture for each little piece of screen. Is this the right way to do it?
Why not?

- Takes much more space
- Much longer to do AND update

Why yes?

- Can improve readability but I'm not so sure, what do you think?

This is not a necessary guideline but would be interesting to get some people's idea about it.

Reads: 4598

Posted by Rick Cogley Thu 15 Jan, 2004 21:05 GMT-0000 posts: 10 🚫 🔴

I think it is both, Chealer9. New users need the context of seeing the whole thing, and how the parts you're discussing fit together. Then, you can focus in both in the words and in smaller (more focused) screen dumps.

Regards
Rick

The original document is available at https://doc.tiki.org/tiki-view_forum_thread.php?comments_parentId=18&display=&fullscreen=&PHPSESSID=