... otay, my frustration has gotten the better of me, and i'm putting out an APB for help finally! ;->>

i'm trying to build multiple pages for different sets of users, and put in specific articles for each page. although i can use:

1) "Articles" to pull in a range of articles (and i know you can filter, but that won't work for what i need it to do), but i want to pull in one specific article.

2) "Arcicle" to pull specific parts of any given article (i.e. Title, Heading, & Body), but i can't pull in the entire article ... not only this, but i'm given an "Edit" button, which i'd rather not do. i have tried pulling in all three parts of an article, using all three Field types, but this looks really bad, not to mention that i then have now 3 edit buttons!!! ;->>>

however, i want to pull in the entire article (similar to a basic "Screen Shot"), unmodified from it's original state. i.e. i want it to look like i'm viewing the article, but show that view on another Wiki page that i'm developing.

any ideas??? ;->>>

i hope i've explained this well enough! pls let me know if you have any questions!

thanx!!!

Dragon9874, no idea myself about your question. But you'd better send your question to the proper forum in http://tikiwiki.org/forums , or to tw.o sf.net lists, but not here, which is just for documentation issues.

Good luck, and welcome to Tikiwiki community.

And you'll be very welcome when you come back to help us improve the Documentation

Cheers
